If you are looking for a luxury apartment in Barcelona's Eixample that blends classical architecture with the finishes of a new build, this property in l'Antiga Esquerra is one of the most distinctive options on the market. Set within a fully restored period building — with an automatic lift and an elegant entrance hall — the 130 m² apartment reconciles the charm of Barcelona's modernist grid with the most contemporary standards of comfort. The layout is designed for those who value both shared living and personal privacy: a bright, generous living and dining room with a double balcony onto the street anchors the home, while the two double bedrooms — each with an en-suite bathroom — offer a genuinely private retreat. A guest bathroom completes the social area. The separate kitchen, conceived by interior designer Sebastián Beriestain, pairs a Sahara Nights granite worktop by Levantina with Sub-Zero and Wolf appliances — a room worth lingering in, not just cooking in. The bathrooms, fitted with Duravit fixtures and bespoke cabinetry, hold the same standard throughout. KNX home automation and aerothermal underfloor heating with fan coils ensure the home runs as efficiently as it feels. L'Antiga Esquerra de l'Eixample is one of the most sought-after and quietly residential corners of the Barcelona grid: well connected, rich in neighbourhood amenities,...
