Designed by architect Antonio Farrés Aymerich, the building is part of the collection of emblematic properties from Madrid's early 20th-century modernist architecture.

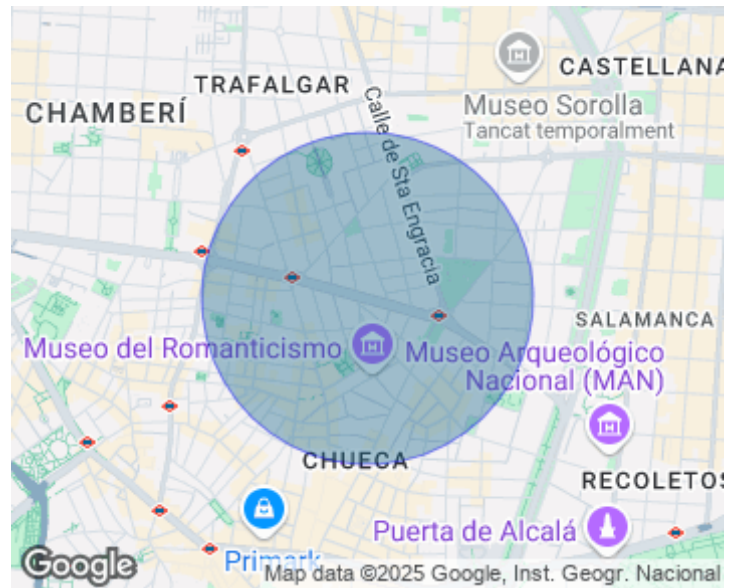

The elegance of the façade reveals lintels, corbels, and wrought-iron details of clear modernist inspiration, while the entrance hall transports residents to the very heart of Parisian Art Nouveau. The vestibule and staircase, decorated with painted plaster vegetal motifs, create a refined modernist atmosphere distinguished by its elegance and beauty. All apartments in the building are equipped with television, internet, individual heating, air conditioning, and a fully furnished kitchen. In addition, they include a washing machine, dryer, refrigerator, oven, microwave, dishwasher, induction hob, two sets of bed linen and towels, complete kitchenware, and small appliances such as a blender, toaster, Nespresso coffee machine, hairdryer, iron, and kettle. Utilities including electricity, water, and gas are also included, along with access to the gym, internet connection, one hour of weekly cleaning service, and on-site concierge service five days a week.
