Designed by the architect Antonio Farres Aymerich, the building is part of the group of emblematic buildings of early 19th-century Modernist Madrid.

The elegance of the façade reveals lintels, corbels, and wrought-iron railings in the Modernist style, but it is the entrance hall that leads us to the very heart of Parisian Art Nouveau. The vestibule and staircase, adorned with painted plaster plant motifs, create a Modernist atmosphere that surprises with its elegance and beauty. All apartments in the building include television, internet access, individual heating, air conditioning, a fully furnished kitchen with a washing machine, dryer, refrigerator, oven, microwave, dishwasher, induction hob, two sets of sheets and towels, complete kitchenware, and small appliances (blender, toaster, Nespresso machine, hairdryer, iron, kettle). In addition, the building includes electricity, water, and gas, access to a gym, internet connection, weekly cleaning service, and a concierge five days a week. Can you imagine living here?
