the Centro district, which keeps the most beautiful and ancient monuments of the city, the most commercial of the streets, as well as the most important organs of municipal, regional and national power. It is bounded by the streets of Sagasta and Génova to the north, Paseo de Recoletos to the east, Fuencarral street to the west and Gran Vía to the south. It is a very popular residential neighborhood due to the great variety of stores, galleries, bars, restaurants and singular spaces, very appreciated for strolling and going out with friends. It preserves the typical architecture...
