There are homes that are simply inhabited, and others that possess a true personality of their own.

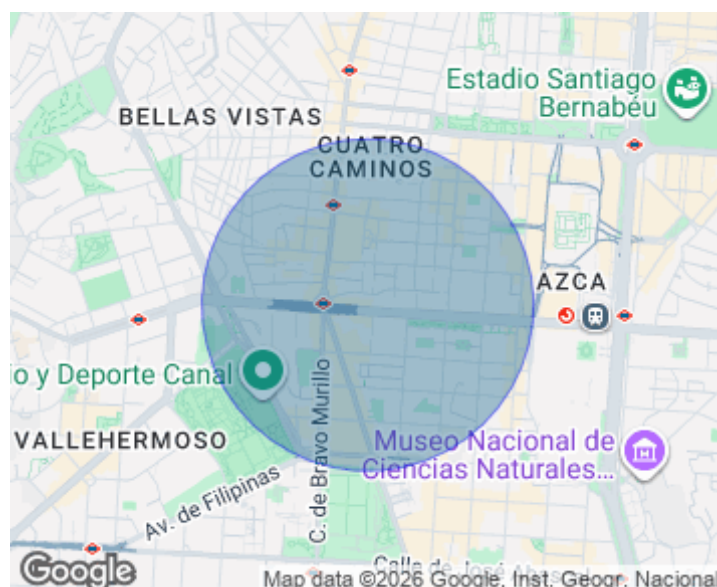

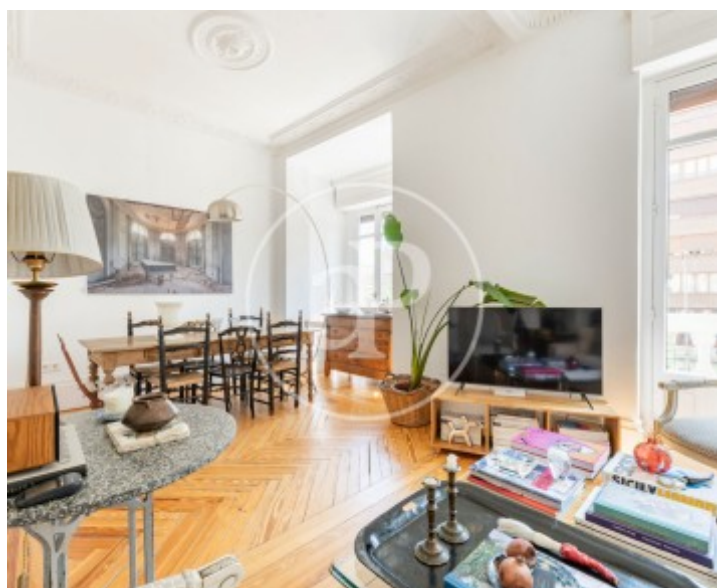

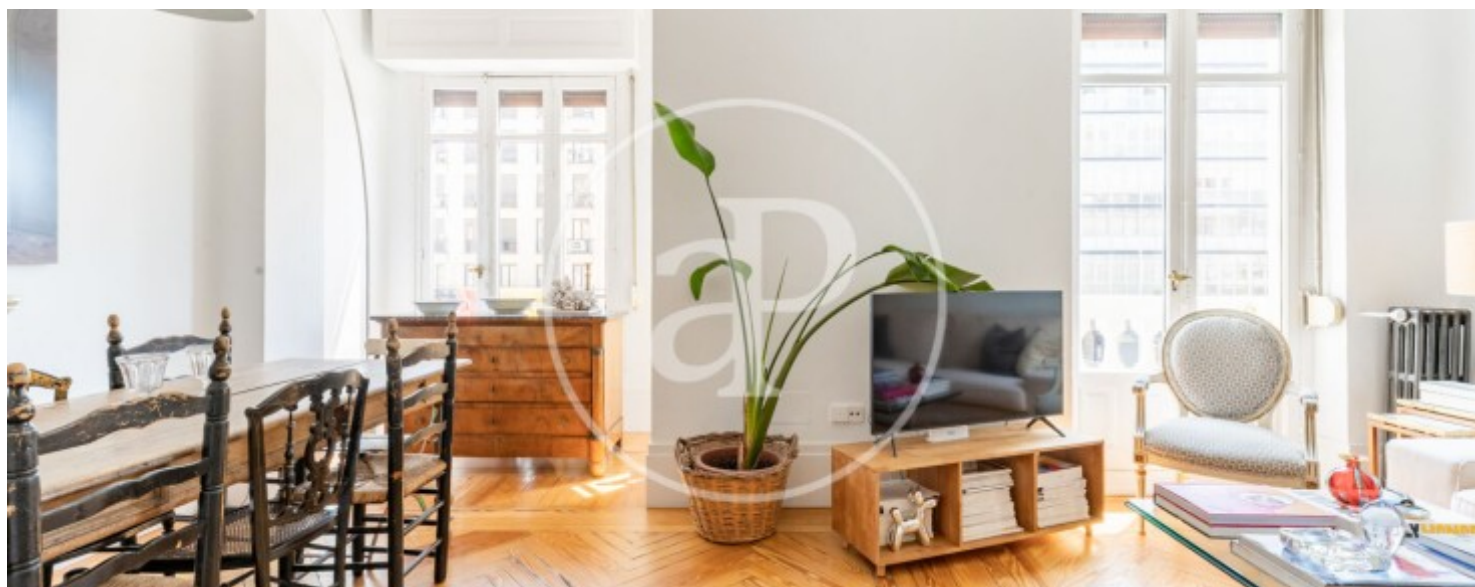

This property is one of them. This is a home with soul, where original elements of classic Madrid architecture combine with a contemporary renovation. Located on an exterior 2nd floor of a building with a protected facade on Raimundo Fernández Villaverde Street, in the Nuevos Ministerios area, this apartment offers 98 m² according to the Cadastre, distributed into two bedrooms and two bathrooms. Its southeast orientation, its two street-facing balconies, and views of the Church of Nuestra Señora del Silencio provide abundant light along with a unique, pleasant sense of spaciousness. The interior preserves details that make this home distinct: ceilings over 3 meters high, original moldings, hardwood floors, and original encaustic cement tiles recovered and restored by the owner coexist with warm and personalized decor. The spacious living-dining room—fully exterior and bathed in light through two large windows with access to the balconies—is the heart of the home, while the generous entrance foyer introduces the character of the property from the very first moment, connecting to an elegant and functional kitchen that also...
