If you want a piece of history to be part of your home, this exclusive property is perfect to make your dream come true.

Famous among those who love history, the Tower of Son Armadams is the core of what once was a great "possessió" or traditional Majorcan house dating from the 12th century and forming part of Spain's Historical Heritage. As a gift from King Jaime I to the Armadams family, it is the monument that later gave its name to the well-known neighborhood of Son Armadams, one of the best valued areas of Palma, being located just 2 minutes from the famous neighborhood of Santa Catalina and its market, but enjoying at the same time a lot of peace and privacy due to its prestigious location. The house retains the charm of the time it was built, with the original stone flooring and wooden beams dating back to the 1400s. There are three ways to access the property: community, private and service. The hall behind the main entrance is very spacious and has a special charm, since it maintains the original stone floors. On one side there is a bright living room with a fireplace, a bathroom, a kitchen with a pantry and a dining room; on the other side is what was the old chapel. The tower is accessed from two sides: here are the four...
